Career

Coach Kleiton Lima is renowned within football in Brazil. He began his career in 1997 coaching for Santos FC's Youth teams where he coached some of today's top players including Robinho (AC Milan), Diego (Atletico Madrid), Alex (Paris SG), William, and Paulo Almeida among others. But Coach Lima is best known for the integral role that he has played in the development of the women's game in Brazil.

With the impressive results obtained with Santos FC's Youth, Kleiton was invited to take charge of Santos FC's Women's professional team in 1997. Over the course of 14 years at the helm of the Santos FC Women's team (1997-2010), he won numerous state, regional, national and international titles, positioning him as one of the most respected coaches in Latin American women's football. Aside from the titles, Lima has coached and developed many players who have served the Brazilian National Team in competitions such as the South American Championship, Pan American Games, Olympic Games and FIFA World Cup.

Career

With Lima at the helm of the Santos FC women's team, they were two-time Paulista Champions, two-time Brazil Cup champions, two-time National league champions, and back-to-back champions of the South American Libertadores Cup (South American Pro Clubs Cup).

With this impressive record and his key role within the evolution of the women's pro game in Brazil, in 2008 Lima was called upon by the Brazilian Football Confederation (CBF) to lead the Under 20 Women's National Team. Under his leadership, they were crowned with the South American championship title.

Soon after that, in January 2009, Coach Lima took command as the Head Coach of the Brazilian Women's National Team (principal team).

In his first year as coach of the Brazil WNT, they won the São Paulo International Tournament, beating all of their opponents and also winning the South American Cup in Ecuador, which was the South American Qualifying Cup for the 2011 FIFA World Cup in Germany and 2012 Olympic Games in London.
